Make me the person I want to become draw from me the secrets buried under the façade of responsibilities, allow me to be who I want as I whisper secrets into the pockets of your open mind and the doorways to your heart. Make me the one you wake to every morning, the coffee that brews you, the ice cream which smothers you. Steal my heart and hold it with your sculpted muscles, massage it as if you want to keep it forever and most important, please don't tell anyone our little secret of the person we will become together.

Diana Raab

Diana Raab lives far away in Santa Barbara. She's the mother of 3 amazingly creative adult children. She recently received her doctorate in transpersonal psychology that has come in handy for life and poetry. When not crafting poetry or blogging for Psychology Today and The Huffington Post, she pretends to offer workshops in writing for transformation. Writers become inspired by her workshops but she makes no promises of transformation. She's the author of 8 books, including 2 memoirs and 4 poetry books, the latest being Lust, which had a timely release this past Valentine's Day. In exchange for $15 she will give you an autographed book and a kiss. She believes that Rick Lupert is one of the most brilliant people she knows and is grateful that he invited her to spend the night with him tonight.
